OMRI DAILY DIGEST
No. 41, 27 February 1995

LITHUANIAN AND RUSSIAN PRIME MINISTERS MEET. Adolfas Slezevicius, during an official visit to Moscow on 24 February, held talks with Viktor Chernomyrdin. Slezevicius called the discussions "constructive, businesslike, and benevolent" and said they should give new impetus to bilateral relations, Interfax reported. Agreements were signed on cooperation in customs and on border check-points. The two premiers also discussed the return of Lithuania's embassies in Paris and Rome and of Lithuanian deposits in Russia's Vneshekonombank, but no timetable was established. Chernomyrdin said Russia could not stop Lithuania becoming a member of NATO but hoped it would not join at a rapid pace. -- Saulius Girnius, OMRI, Inc.
